She was the mother of Leo Fleischmann, the fifteen-year-old boy who disappeared Sept. 6 and in the search for whom thousands of dol-lars have been spent. And now the mother is to have her boy again after months of terrible suspense. Leo Fleischmann has been found aboard the

I will see him again.' I don't believe will be reward enough for me." I could stand another disappointment, and if there should prove to be a mistake in identity this time I can't see how I will bear the shock.

"I am going to Norfolk this afternoon with my husband and can hardly wait until train time. I heard from the police that the boy found on the ship admits plaining that the boy in Los Angeles was only twelve years old. A reward of $1,000 was offered for the mains of the boy, and the Fleishmanns have expended large sums of money exhausting every means knows to find a trace of their son. The first reward offered for information concerning his whereabouts was $200, but it was later reised to the larger sum.

"Oh so many times I have had word sent me by some person who had read of the disappearance, that my boy was found" said the mother, but every clue round said the mother, but every clue proved false. Leo is of nervous tem-perament, and the only reason I could possibly give for his disappearance, was that he was suffering under a nervous strain He hated the city and was sensative, because he was not as home, at No. 12 East Eighty-eighth street, to go to his tutor's house. He was a student at the City College, but he was studying algebra under a tutor.

Not Fond of the Sea.

The fact that Leo has been found aboard a ship seems strange to me, for he never spoke of any fondnes for the sea.

"Of course, the reports say, that for two months he worked as a waiter in Philadelphia, and I imagine he might have entered the receiving ship as a too proud to come back home, for he Once Before She Was Convinced He take care of himself anywhere.

"No one but a mother who has suf-fered a similar loss can understand the situation. The case, too, was so unusual. Here was Leo, a boy who had every wish granted that we knew of. His father idolized him and practically waited on him like a younger brother. He had an excellent home, which I had to leave when he disappeared, for I could not bear the associations. "As soon as I get my boy at Norfolk

How He Was Found.

The Fleischmann boy was found by Detective Connor, of the Norfolk Police Department. The boy at first denied his identity, but later admitted it.

Some of his shipmates had read an account of young Fleishmann's disappearance and although their companion had passed under the name of Farreil and stated that he was twenty-two years old, they decided that Farreil was he missing boy. Pictures were taken aboard ship by Detectives Connors and Fleishmann and was brought country for the past nine months that a nepstition of the disappointment she minderwent on April 4, when a despatch country form California that her son had been found, only to be followed by a denial, would have serious results.

"Every Size Shoes" at $2.75

We will grant that our shoe styles are governed entirely by the ideas of the best and highest priced bootmakers. Theirs is the genius to create, ours is the facility to copy. We give in shoes the same result as they do without incurring the great expense of initiative. Initiative is costly, and the man who buys his shoes of the exclusive bootmaker bears the burden of expense-$10 to $12 is his share for every pair of shoes he buys. In duplicating the bootmaker's exclusive styles only the usual expenses of shoe building are involved. Thus we can give you all this exclusiveness of style in "Every Size Shoes" at $2.75 the

"Every Size Shoes" come in every width from AA to EE and every size and half size from 4 to 12-30 new models, two of which are illustrated above. All leathers in high or low shoes, button, lace and blucher.

15,000 Stylish Regligee Shirts for Men on Sale at THE BIG STORE OF ACITY IN ITSELF THIS is the greatest and most important operation in Shirt buying and selling we have announced in twelve months.

A year ago we announced a big sale of Men's Negligee Shirts, and great crowds responded enthusiastically for a week, crowding the Main Aisle and the Men's rurnishing Store to overflowing daily.

For the present event we have prepared even more thoroughly than we did last May, and we thought at that time that we had gone through all details with comsummate completeness.

Men who prefer WHITE NEGLIGEE SHIRTS will find them in abundance and in plain or plaited bosoms. Cuffs are detached. In COLORED SHIRTS the variety is practically inexhaustible.

These are in the newest early Summer patterns and colorings. They afford an excellent opportunity for the critical customer to purchase with more than ordinary satisfaction. De-
